

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

-----X

ONATE, et al.,

ORDER

Plaintiffs,

20-cv-8292 (LGS) (JW)

-against-

AHRC HEALTH CARE, INC.,

Defendant.

-----X

JENNIFER E. WILLIS, United States Magistrate Judge:

On March 28, 2023, Judge Schofield directed the Parties to jointly provide an update on the status of opt-in discovery and a proposed schedule for depositions. Dkt. No. 161. On April 11, 2023, the Parties submitted a letter with agreed-upon dates for a deposition schedule, however, the Parties disagreed on the appropriate scope of discovery for the opt-in Plaintiffs. Dkt. No. 165.

To begin, the Court approves the proposed schedule for opt-in discovery. See Dkt. No. 165.

Next, the Parties are invited to brief the Court on the following issues:

- Is sampling of the opt-in Plaintiffs appropriate for discovery in this case?
- If a sample of the opt-in Plaintiffs is appropriate, should that sample be a percentage of the entire opt-in Plaintiff population or a flat number?
- Are there any relevant statistical principles, or relevant case law applying such statistical principles, that provide the Court with a rational basis for determining what the appropriate percentage or appropriate flat number to sample should be?

- What is the appropriate percentage or flat number of opt-in Plaintiffs that should compose the sample?
- What should the scope of discovery for any sampled opt-in Plaintiffs be?

Plaintiffs shall submit a letter motion addressing these issues (that is not to exceed ten pages) by June 26, 2023. Defendant shall submit a letter motion in Opposition (also not to exceed ten pages) by July 14, 2023. No Reply shall be permitted.

The Parties are free to confer and agree on the scope of discovery or the size of the sample. Should they do so, they must provide a status update to the Court. Any status update should include the proposed size and scope of the sample as well as any adjusted discovery deadlines.

SO ORDERED.
